TRIAL

OF

COLONEL A. BURR.

MOTION FOR COMMITMENT.

EXAMINATION OF EVIDENCE.

MONDAY, October 3.

This day Mr. Burr proceeded to put in to execution his threats against general Eaton.

Mr. Burr addressed the court:—I have understood, sir, that there are certain proceedings of a court martial, of which gen. Eaton is the subject, and in which he was charged with offences, that would disqualify him as a witness. After a satisfactory search, I find that the papers were burnt in the war office. I have procured a deposition of the chief clerk of the war office, to show that such is the fact. This is to establish the loss of the papers, with a view to let in oral testimony.

Mr. Hay objected to this proceeding.—Suppose that this deposition did actually establish the fact for which it was produced yet why establish it in this court? Mr. H said he should object to the production of the records of a court martial. He presumed that gen Eaton's trial was of a military nature, for some neglect or violation of military duty; and not for any charge of a civil nature. Taking this fact for granted he presumed that the court would not permit the introduction of the original records. The accused is at liberty to go into evidence as to the general character of a witness, but not as to any particular fact. Under such circumstances it was unnecessary to occupy the time of the court either with this affidavit or with oral evidence.

Mr. Burr. The affidavit proves that such papers were burnt in the War Office. We shall prove by a witness, that such a Court martial was held, and that general Eaton was found guilty of certain crimes, which would disqualify him as a witness in a court of justice. We shall prove that he has been convicted by a court martial of crimen falsi; and that the records of these proceedings were transmitted to the war-office, where they were burnt. We shall then produce a witness to prove these charges. Then will arise a novel question; how far a man convicted of a crime, not in a court of common law jurisdiction, is disqualified from serving as a witness in a court of common law, if it be such a crime as would amount to such a disqualification in a court of common law. When the court shall hear the proof, the question will then arise as to general Eaton's credibility and competency. We shall urge it as to both these points. We shall show, that the crimes were great enough to affect his competency, and if they were of an inferior dye, they would affect his credibility.

Mr. Hay presumed that evidence might be at any time brought up to affect the competency of a witness, but that if it was intended to impeach his credibility, it could only be done on the ground of general character; and that no witness's credibility could be attacked by any particular charge, unless he had received previous notice, and was permitted to prepare for his defence.

After some discussion, the Chief Justice over-ruled Mr. Hay's objection.

Mr. Baker then read the following affidavit:

District of Columbia, Washington County, ss.

Personally appeared before me, one of the justices of the peace of the U. States in and for the county of Washington in the district of Columbia, John Smith, chief clerk in the War Office, who being duly sworn, deposed and saith, that having searched the records and papers in the war office, there are no records of proceedings of courts marshal, or any papers or proceedings relative to the same, previous to the year one thousand eight hundred and one, and that he hath understood and verily believes, that all records and proceedings of courts marshal, which were deposited in said office previous to the day of November, in the year one thousand eight hundred and one, were burnt with the office and a number of other papers on that day. That having come into the office since the above date, he never saw any record or proceedings of a court martial held on William Eaton, and that there is no record or proceeding of any such court martial now in the war office to the best of this deponent's knowledge and belief.

Sworn to before me this 24th day of September A. D. 1807.

RICHARD PARROT.

(Annexed is the certificate of James Madison, secretary of state, that the above R. Parrot is a justice of the peace as above stated.)

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, November 4.

The following gentlemen compose the committee to whom was referred the letter of gen. Eaton, published in this day's paper, viz. Messrs. Thomas, John Smith, Holland, Taylor, D. Montgomery, Taggart, and Lyon.

Mr. Nelson presented a petition from a number of inhabitants of the election district in the state of Maryland, alleging that Philip B. Key was improperly returned as a member of the house of representatives from that district, and praying that his seat be vacated. Referred to the committee of elections.

Mr. Southard moved that the petition of Jonathan Snowden, presented at last session, and a report made thereon by the committee of claims, but not finally acted upon, be now referred to the committee of claims. Agreed to.

Mr. Quincy presented the petition of Joseph White, praying for a drawback on a certain quantity of sugar exported, but which he could not now obtain, from the omission of a slight formality in the claim. Referred to the committee of commerce and manufactures.

Messrs. Cook, Johnson, Van Allen, Seaver, Morrow, (O) each made motions for reference to the Post-Office committee, of certain petitions and resolutions for establishing or abolishing post-roads in their respective districts—which were agreed to.

Mr. Van Allen presented the petition of H. Doolittle, praying for compensation for his services in the revolutionary war. Referred to the committee of claims.

Mr. Chandler moved that the petition of Reuben Colburn, praying the allowance of a sum of money due him for services in the revolutionary war, which had been presented at a former session, be referred to the committee of claims. Agreed to.

Mr. Nelson did not know whether the motion he was now to make was in order or not. He had been instructed to move that the memorial of sir James Jay, presented at a former session, and referred to the secretary of state, together with the secretary's report thereon, and the report of a select committee upon that report, be now referred to a committee of the whole house.

Mr. Southard doubted the correctness of referring the report of a committee of a former house to a committee of the whole: the usual mode was to refer a report of a former congress to a select committee; that committee would report to the house, and their report might be referred to a committee of the whole.

Mr. Nelson had no objection to any course the house thought proper: perhaps a reference to a select committee would be best.

The petition and documents were accordingly referred to a select committee of five members, consisting of the following gentlemen: Messrs. Jones, Stanford, Van Allen, Upham and Haister.

Mr. Seaver presented the petition of John Carteret, of Boston, praying for compensation for his services as a cooper in the commissary department during the revolutionary war; which was referred to the committee of claims.

Mr. Lewis said, that, as at the present period of the session, there was very little if any business of national importance before the house, he took the liberty of reviving a subject of some importance to the people at large, and particularly interesting to the inhabitants of the district of Columbia. About four years ago, petitions were presented to the house, praying for the erection of a bridge across the Potomac; and the subject had been revived at every session since. A bill had passed by a large majority in the house to effect this desirable purpose; but the other branch of the legislature, from considerations which it was not necessary for him to detail, had postponed the bill. In order to bring this subject again before congress, he moved that the petitions which had been presented for and against this measure, should be referred to a select committee with leave to report by bill or otherwise. Agreed to, and Messrs. Lewis, Mosely, Swart, Bard, and Franklin were appointed a committee.

Mr. Mumford presented the petition of Philip Turner, late of Connecticut, but now of the state of New-York, praying for compensation for his services as a physician and surgeon in the revolutionary army. Referred to the committee of claims.

A journaled.

THURSDAY, Nov. 5.
Mr. Gardener said, that in examining upon the table this morning, he observed that his name was altogether omitted in the year and days taken on the question of deciding the mode of appointing the standing committees. It was, no doubt, the recollection of the house, that an error had, by mistake, placed him among the years instead of the days, and that he desired at the time to have the error corrected. But instead of that being done, he found his name altogether omitted. In order to correct this error he moved the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the Journal of the house of the 23d of October, be amended by placing the name of Barent Gardener amongst those who voted in the negative on the amendment proposed by Mr. Blount to the resolution appointing standing committees."

This motion occasioned some debate, as a question of order. It was opposed on the ground of its being a dangerous precedent to suffer the journal to be corrected several days after a question had been decided; it was said that if this were allowed, the alteration might sometimes change the decision of a question; that any mistake in the journal ought to be corrected immediately after the entries are read; that errors in the year and day should be rectified at the time they are called over; and that all other errors should be corrected on the morning of the succeeding day when the journal is read to the house.

On the other hand, it was contended, that the member from N-York had taken the earliest opportunity which had offered of correcting the error, as until the printed journal was laid upon the table, he had no opportunity of ascertaining it, the year & days having never been read since he attempted to correct them at the time when the notes were taken; that he had a constitutional right to have his name on the journal on this question, and therefore demanded it; that the fact was known to be as stated, and that no danger could therefore arise from the precedent.

The motion was supported by Messrs. Gardiner, Ely, Quincy, Desha, Pitkin, Williams and Talmadge, and opposed by Messrs. Smilie and Alston. It was finally adopted, with a preamble moved by Mr. Talmadge, stating the grounds of the motion.

Mr. Poindexter moved that the petitions of John Baker, Wm. Coleman, James Collinworth, James Caller, Young Gaines, the grand jurors of Washington county, Edwin Lewis, Samuel Mims and John Pickering, all of the Mississippi territory, presented at a former session, be now referred to the committee on public lands. Agreed to.

Mr. Dana said, it was well known, that during the last congress, an act was passed for the relief of persons claiming pensions; the object of the act was to grant relief to some whose cases were not embraced by the former act, and to grant an increased allowance to others who had not as yet received sufficient. This act provides for taking depositions before the district judge, in cases where the claimants have never been placed on the pension list, as well as for examination of the claims of those who apply to have their pensions increased. Whether any compensation should be allowed for issuing commissions, or for making the examinations required, is not declared by the act. A difference of practice, he understood, had taken place: in some cases commissions were issued gratuitously by the district judge; in other cases these poor solicitors were obliged, from their small pittance, to pay for these services. If any compensation were to be allowed for this service, he thought it should be paid from the public treasury; whatever might be the mode adopted, he wished it to be fixed by law; for this purpose he offered the following resolution:

"Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire what compensation shall be allowed for issuing commissions, giving authority for taking testimony, or examining evidence relative to claims or applications under the act to provide for persons who have been disabled by known wounds received in the revolutionary war."

Mr. D. said he had intended to have had this resolution referred to the committee of claims; but finding the chairman of that committee opposed to it, he would move a reference of it to a select committee.

Agreed to.
Mr. Finley from the committee of elections, made a report in part; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. G. W. Campbell, from the committee of ways and means, reported a bill for making further appropriations for the support of the navy of the United States during the year 1867; which was twice read, committed to a committee of the whole, and ordered to be printed, with the documents accompanying it.

A message was received from the Senate informing the house that they had appointed a committee on enrolled bills, which the house concurred with, and appointed a committee on their part.

Mr. Fisk presented the petition of Daniel Buck of the state of Vermont, praying for an increase of pension and payment of arrears for his services as a soldier during the revolutionary war; which was referred to the committee of claims.

The Boston Gazette, announcing the arrival of the Aristides says,

"The Points in controversy between the United States and Great Britain, had been discussed by the respective ministers; and that such an amicable adjustment had taken place, as to warrant a notice from BOTH Parties."

"That Peace and Friendship might be considered as being AGAIN RESTORED between the two countries."

The United States schooner Revenge, was to leave England about the 20th September, with dispatches for the United States.

From the Boston Chronicle.

Late Foreign Intelligence.

Yesterday after our paper had gone to press the ship Aristides arrived here from Liverpool, bringing papers of that city to the 12th of Sept. and London to the 14th. Their contents are of the highest importance, as will be seen by the subsequent extracts, which are all we could prepare in season for this day's paper.

Copenhagen had not surrendered on the 4th September, nor did it appear that it would soon do so. Our differences with England were discussing by authorized agents, and some of the papers anticipated an amicable issue.

Evacuation of South America.

SEPTEMBER 12.

The Saracen sloop of 18 guns arrived yesterday at Portsmouth with dispatches from lieutenant general Whitelocke, dated the tenth July, containing the ungrateful intelligence, that the British forces under his command had made an attack upon Buenos Ayres, but had experienced so much resistance from the numerous forces of the enemy, that after having gained possession of part of the town it was thought prudent to enter into a capitulation by which it has been agreed to evacuate not only the port of Buenos Ayres, of which our troops had gained possession, but Montevideo, Maldonado, in fine, the whole of South America, in the short space of two months. The following Bulletin was sent from the admiralty to the Lord Mayor, and by his order posted on the Mansion House and communicated to Lloyd's:

"Downing Street, Sept. 12.

"Lord Castlereagh, has the honor of acquainting the Lord Mayor, that dispatches have been received this morning from lieutenant general Whitelocke, dated July 10, by which it appears that in an attack upon the town of Buenos Ayres, his majesty's troops experienced so much resistance from the tumultuous force of the enemy, that after gaining possession of part of the town, with severe loss, on the 5th July, the lieutenant general thought it prudent to enter into a negotiation with General Liniers, who commanded the enemy's forces, by which he agreed to evacuate South America within two months, upon condition that all prisoners taken in the attack, as well as those captured at the surrender of Buenos Ayres, should be restored. The total loss amounts in killed to 816, wounded 674, missing 208.

"To the right honorable the lord mayor."

It thus appears that our loss in killed, wounded and missing, amounts to 1,200 men. The remainder, according to the terms of capitulation, are now upon their way home.

COPENHAGEN.

A Gottenburg mail arrived yesterday with intelligence to the 31st. Letters of that date say, that a courier had arrived there who left Copenhagen on the evening of Saturday the 29th, at which time in consequence of the bombardment of our sea or land forces, the town was on fire in different places; and it was said that the arsenal was on fire. This is three days later than the dispatches, and the town was not taken. Thus we find that our troops have been landed a fortnight and nothing effected. Indeed, after the Danes have had so much time to prepare, and they have been allowed to recover from the first apprehensions, and to calculate their means of defence, the success of the attempt upon Copenhagen appears questionable. The delay of the attack by land may be supposed to be justified by the expectation of the certain success of the slow mode of operation; but the delay in attacking the naval line of defence renders the victory much more doubtful than it would have been; and it seems to be thought now that the place must be taken by land, and that our fleet could, from the preparations, made by the Danes, make little impression, where they were formerly victorious under NELSON.

Dispatches have arrived from admiral Gambier, but they are not of so satisfactory a nature as was expected. They are dated the 26th, and were brought by the Ernest gun-brig, which sailed on the 27th. The account given out by the Messenger is, that up to that time nothing of consequence had taken place. The letters from the fleet represent the siege of Copenhagen as likely to continue three weeks.

Indeed some private letters have been received, which lead us to conclude, that the accounts received by ministers are unfavorable. It is stated in them, that an unsuccessful attack was made upon the 23d, and that a good many men were killed on board our ships. It is stated also, that the Danes had driven our troops from a redoubt near the town where a battery had been erected, and that they were twice repulsed in attempting to retake it. They have burnt part of the suburbs to facilitate their defence, and seem determined to hold out to the last extremity.

There were reports in the city yesterday, of admiral Gambier being killed, and Sir Home Popham having lost a leg, & our fleet having on the whole, suffered considerably. These were certainly unfounded, though it was said that several officers have fallen, which indeed, seems to be corroborated by the rumours brought by the Gottenburgh Mail.

Russia and Sweden.

It is stated in a letter from Stockholm, of the 27th of August, that the Russian ambassador had delivered a note to the Swedish government, in which it was declared, that if assistance were rendered to the British fleet, or any part of it admitted into the ports of Sweden, it would be considered as a declaration of war, and that the Emperor of Russia would march an army into Finland.

The court of Algeiras has been suspended, and all trials are hereafter to take place at Madrid.

Captain Brown, who came passenger in the schooner Hamilton, arrived at N. York from La Vera Cruz, informs that about the first of September a severe gale of wind was felt in the bay of Mexico. At Camprachy 50 houses were destroyed and about fifty vessels lost. The tide rose to such a height as to drive some of the vessels three miles into the country. About twelve vessels were lost at La Vera Cruz, and the most of the crews perished. It was supposed to be the heaviest gale ever experienced at that place.

The following extract of a letter requires no comment. He whose blood does not boil with indignation on the bare perusal of such conduct, and who does not deplore that such lawless scenes should ever disgrace our country, must be too far bewildered in the mazes of folly, or sunk too deep in wickedness, to be reclaimed by any thing we could say on the subject.—[Wash. Federalist.

Extract of a letter, addressed to the editor, dated Baltimore, Nov. 4, 1867.

"Yesterday effigies of the Chief Justice, Burr, Blannerhassett and Luther Martin were prepared at the Point, placed in carts, attended by a considerable RABBLE, paraded through the streets of town, and afterwards taken to a place called Gallows Hill, where they were hanged and burnt. It is unnecessary to say that this scandalous proceeding is condemned by good citizens of all parties, and that none were concerned in it, who had any reputation to lose.

"An invitation had been given in the Whig to tar and feather Luther Martin. With a view to prevent this, and preserve good order, captains Barney and Hollingsworth's troops were ordered out. Owing, perhaps, to this precaution, no violence was offered to any of the citizens.

"From the account given in the Whig of this transaction, strangers might be led to suppose that the citizens generally turned out, and that the proceeding was popular. Nothing can be more false. Joel M. Manson, who is said to be concerned in the Whig establishment, was in the procession."

The following is a narrative of the loss of the ship Argo, captain Lockyer, bound from Philadelphia to Havana.

On Wednesday the 16th of September between 4 and 5 o'clock P. M., owing to the incorrectness of the charts, the ship, after encountering heavy squalls and baffling winds, struck upon a reef of coral, about 3 or 4 leagues to the eastward of the Little Isaac Rock, which was merely discernable at the mast head. The look-out, not only on deck, but aloft, had been strictly attended to, and the lead was constantly cast, as the ship was in ten fathom water a few minutes before she struck. The current, which was unusually strong, so immediately shifted the ship's place, after she had cleared the first Rock, that with unremitting labour in sounding with the boats in every direction, we could find no channel sufficiently deep, by which to take the ship out—and in this situation, after many fruitless attempts both by warping and sailing to clear the reef, every hour drifting upon a different rock; we staid by her nearly 5 days and nights, when she finally beat with such force that she bilged, and we left her with 9 feet water in her hold. The boats, which had been previously prepared, were hauled along side, and the captain together with Mr. Courtauld and Mr. Wharton the second officer and 5 hands, got into the long boat, and the first officer with 5 hands into the pinnace, both boats intending to stand for the Great Isaac Rock, a distance of about 40 miles. The long boat was driven by head winds and a lee current, to the edge of the Gulf, and did not make the Great Isaac, until Saturday afternoon—the pinnace meeting with the same winds and current, was swept further into the Gulf stream, and remained there until Monday when she was descried by the ship Comet, captain Charles Dixey, on board of which was the honorable Daniel Clarke, the owner, who when he was made acquainted with the disaster, of the Argo judging that the long boat had reached the Great Isaac Block, humanely stood for the relief of the crew until Thursday, when they were discovered by the tent on the rock, and about noon were taken off. In the attempt to relieve them the Comet met with very heavy gales of wind, which situated as she then was, endangered her safety considerably; but Mr. Clark (undismayed by the appearance of a hurricane, which for several days had threatened to blow, and which from the period of the year was looked for,) resolutely determined to restore to their friends and families ten grateful beings, who acknowledged him under God, their generous deliverer.

To captain Dixey also, whose exertions aided the wishes of Mr. Clarke, they tender their sincere thanks, and trust, as he merits, so will he receive the approbation of every friend to humanity—particularly for his attention whilst on board his ship.

It may not be improper in this place to add, although no additional proof of Mr. Clark's exalted benevolence can be required, that he had in the Comet, property to the amount of 100,000 dollars, which was jeopardized when he deviated from his course—and to the honor of the public insurance offices, as well as the private underwriters of Philadelphia, let it be told, that they unanimously declared their willingness to sustain the loss, if any occurred by reason of the said deviation; approving the highest terms the generous and noble conduct of this worthy man.

OAK HILL MILL,
And two valuable Leases,

SITUATED in the county of Fauquier,
on the great road leading from Ashby's and Manassas's Gaps, in the Blue Ridge, to Alexandria, Falmouth, and Fredericksburg.
The mill seat commands a fall of 24 feet
in a very constant stream, issuing immediately from the Cobler Mountain, and is improved by a merchant mill fifty-five by forty-five, three stories high, two of stone and one of wood, containing two water wheels, sixteen feet in diameter, one pair of burr and one of Allegheny stones, with the necessary running gear and machinery, in perfect repair—
To the mill is attached a lot of twenty acres, in fee simple, on which there is a framed dwelling-house, 38 feet by 20, with two rooms below stairs and two above, an unfinished por-tico behind, of the whole length of the house, and a porch in front, two excellent springs rising within a few feet of the dwelling house,
and the mill supply both with water.

The leases are for two unexpired lives, contain one hundred acres each, and lay adjacent to each other, and to the mill lot. They have on them houses for the reception of tenants,
twelve acres of improved timothy meadow,
and one hundred and forty acres of inclosed land, adapted for Plaster of Paris and recavery, and now in a state of high cultivation.
The terms of sale of the above property will be made to suit the convenience of the purchaser, to whom will be given an indisputable title. For the terms of sale or a view of the premises, application may be made to Robert
